

Ms. Draeger's Newsletter

Language Arts:

We have already learned two of our Kindergarten sight words: "I" and "like". In our reading groups each student has received a leveled student book that focused on each of these words. As your child brings his/her books home please take the time to reread them over the weekend. We talked about getting a special box/bag, or having a special spot in their room to put all of their school books so they can practice their reading whenever they have some extra time. They are SO EXCITED about their reading and its important to keep that going at home and at school!

Science:

This week we learned about apples and labeled all the different parts - skin, core, flesh, seeds, stem, and leaf. We also had a lot of fun making our own applesauce on Friday!! Ask your child all about it over the weekend!!

Homework:

I want to say a big "thank you" to all of you that have been working hard and completing homework over the week. I know the kids are excited to get it on Monday. Just a couple reminders - please make sure your child is writing with a pencil unless it calls for rainbow writing and please sit down with your child when they are doing their handwriting (name, letters, and numbers) to help them use the handwriting lines appropriately. This will get easier for them in time, but right now they are just learning how to write and need guidance on how to use their handwriting lines. THANK YOU!!
